Alberta Forklift Safety Training

Forklift Safety Training Alberta - Any individual who would like to operate a lift truck needs to take a forklift safety training program to become a certified forklift truck operator. There are a variety of ways to obtain forklift training. Courses are offered through workforce training agencies, company forklift certification programs, and approved video and on-line courses. The cost could be minimal (or free) when provided through employment agencies or by occupational safety officers on job sites.

Forklift operators need to be 18 years of age or over, in nearly all nations. Local industry bodies approve forklift safety training programs and need operators to obtain a certificate prior to utilizing this kind of heavy equipment. A certificate is valid for four years in nearly all areas. Businesses that hire workers to drive forklift trucks could face serious liability issues if operators fail to keep this certificate up to date.

The untrained forklift operator is more at risk to lead to injuries or damages due to incorrect utilization of the lift truck. Hence, safety training courses would include right methods for driving and loading. Workers must pass a written exam in order to be certified. A business will usually assign a supervisor to be able to provide hands-on training to new workers. A qualified supervisor must have extensive training in lift truck safety and be trained as a trainer.

Those looking for gainful employment as an operator of a lift truck would have a lot of alternatives at their disposal to obtain the needed training and certification. Training possibly will be available to the individual through a development agency or an employment agency. Those looking for work as forklift operators can enroll in forklift safety training courses delivered by an approved trainer at an independent site. Manual laborers can find more job opportunities if they have forklift certification.

The Web provides another alternative for those seeking forklift safety training. Training is offered via video and online formats. However, certification usually requires that students write a test and take a forklift driving test.
